Bourbon County Teacher's Institute.

The arrangements of Mrs. Nell Bedford Clay for conducting the Bourbon County Institute were excellent. The Institute was held in the Public School building from the 17th to the 21st inst inclusive. Col. Geo. M. Edgar was the conductor, and though he had but little assistance from without, gave the county teachers a most profitable week's work. His instruction embraced a wide range of subjects, but he paid especial attention to school management, discussing at length the qualifications of the teachers, the environment of the pupil at home, the school house and its necessary equipment, how to organize a school, how to teach it and how to govern it. These discussions emphasized the general principles underlying successful school management, and abounded in practical suggestions and cautions and guide the young teacher into successful methods and lead him to avoid errors that the inexperienced are liable to fall into. He also discussed the various subjects of study embraced in the Syllabus furnished by the State Board of Education, giving especial attention to Reading, Arithmetic and Nature study, and illustrated the latter by interesting experiments and suggested to the teachers a course of oral instruction, by the use of which they might greatly add to the interest and profit of their pupils without burdening them with additional work.

He advocated, strongly, the introduction of Drawing and Music into the curriculum of the Public Schools, showing how valuable they may be made, both as instruments of culture and as means to make a livelihood.

His closing address on Consciousness and Attention, was among his best, setting forth the nature of Consciousness, the conditions of its healthy exercise, and discussing the different kinds of Attention and the methods by which the power of Voluntary Attention, so necessary to the success of the student, may be acquired as a habit.

The teachers were urged to participate in the discussions, and not a few of them responded in well-considered thoughts on the various subjects considered, showing that Bourbon county has earnest, competent workers in its Public Schools, who are striving to keep pace with advanced thought on education.

The following teachers, not connected with the County Schools, contributed by invitation to the discussion of special subjects—Messrs. Sharon, Elliot, Croxton and McChesney, and Misses Blanche Lilleston and Annie May Simms. The contributions of these well-known teachers was highly appreciated by the teachers, as well as by the Superintendent and Instructor. It is to be hoped that Prof. Croxton's discussion of the way to teach vocal music in the Public Schools will bear fruit in the work of the teachers during the ensuing year.

The program of Thursday was varied by the graduating exercises of two young ladies in the Common School Course. One of them, Miss Davie Turner, of Miss Lenihan's school, gave a recitation, and the other, Miss Rowena Abnee, of Miss Sallie Whaley's school, a Valedictory address, both of which were well received; after which diplomas were awarded to them in an appropriate address by Prof. Sharon. A gold medal was then awarded Miss Abnee by Mrs. Nell Bedford Clay, for obtaining the highest average on all her studies, the presentation address being made by Col. Edgar.

Mrs. Clay announced that a diploma would have been awarded to Miss Edna Earl Speakes, had she lived to participate in the closing exercises.

Misses Katie Lee Hooze and Winifred Doyle contributed some excellent music on this occasion.

Two of our city pastors, Messrs. Morgan and Clark, were present on two mornings to conduct the opening religious exercises, and Mrs. Johnson, Misses Fannie Johnson, Bettie Brent Johnson, Mattie Alexander, Blanche Lilleston, Mattie Lilleston, Georgie Fithian, Mrs. Owen Davis and Messrs. Morgan, sons of the minister, contributed some excellent music which was highly appreciated by all present. Altogether the Institute was quite a success, and the Superintendent, Instructor and teachers are to be congratulated.

FOUND GUILTY.—The findings of the regimental court martial, held at Lexington, Friday, upon the charges and specifications made against Capt. F. M. Maddox, Lieut. S. Blakely and Lieut. J. Downing, of the Second regiment, K. S. G., were made known by Col. Roger D. Williams, Saturday night, and having been approved by him each of the accused officers are found guilty of the charge specified against them, and Capt. Maddox is ordered to pay a fine of $10, Lieut. Downing $15 and Lieut. Blakely $25. A reprimand from the commanding officer, which in this instance is Col. Williams, accompanies each fine.

We would like to ask, through the columns of your paper, if there is any person who has used Green's August Flower, for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Liver Trouble that has not been cured—and we also mean their results, such as sour stomach, fermentation of food, habitual constiveness, nervous dyspepsia, headaches, despondent feelings, sleeplessness—in fact any trouble connected with the stomach or liver? This medicine has been sold for many years in all civilized countries, and we wish to correspond with you and send you one of our books free of cost. If you never tried August Flower, try a 25 cent bottle first. We have never known of its failing. If so, something more serious is the matter with you. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents. W. T. Brooks.

G. G. GREEN, Woodbury, N. J.

Caution!

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase the only remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds perhaps, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectation and coughing during the night and morning, there is nothing like German Syrup. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents.—W. T. Brooks.

G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

The Proceedings of the 37th Annual Assemblage.

Gen. John C. Black, of Illinois, Was Elected Commander-in-Chief—The Next Encampment Will Be Held in Boston.

San Francisco, Aug. 21.—The Grand Army of the Republic Thursday selected Boston as the place in which the encampment of 1904 will be held, and elected the following officers:

The first report of the afternoon was that of the flag committee. It recommended the passage of bills through congress and the different states for the purpose of fostering public sentiment in favor of honoring the national flag. The report of the committee was adopted.

A proposition to admit sons of veterans into the grand army posts was strongly supported, but after an extended debate was defeated by a small majority. The encampment adopted a resolution requesting congress to pass a bill pensioning all veterans who have reached the age of 62 years.

The Woman's Relief Corps elected the following officers Thursday afternoon: National president, Sarah Wiggins, Ohio; senior vice commander, Ursula M. Mattison, Washington.

The National Association of Army Nurses of the civil war held its annual election Thursday. There was a large number present and the meeting was largely of a social nature, though held in executive session. The following officers were elected: National president, Mrs. Addie L. Ballou, California; national vice president, Mrs. Susannah Mims, Pennsylvania; junior vice president, Mrs. James Smith, Ohio; treasurer, Mrs. S. M. Stewart, Gettysburg, Pa.; chaplain, Mary E. Lacy, New Jersey; guard, Mary F. Fox, New Jersey; conductor, Mrs. E. L. Chapman, Illinois.

San Francisco, Aug. 22.—The 37th national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic closed Friday afternoon after a protracted morning session. The newly elected officers, with the exception of Junior Vice Commander Kessler, who is now on the way from the Philippines, were installed.

It was resolved to telegraph to President Roosevelt the resolution favoring the pensioning of veterans of 62 years of age, which was adopted Thursday.

The committee on resolutions presented a number of resolutions on which action was taken. The proposal to make all past adjutant general members of the encampment was defeated. A resolution favoring legislation to prevent, by education and in other ways, the desecration of the flag was adopted.

The proposed establishment of national soldiers' homes at Fort Sherman, Idaho, in Florida, and in Oklahoma was endorsed.

The encampment unanimously adopted the following resolution introduced by Capt. P. H. Coney, of Topeka, Kan.: "Resolved, That we congratulate that splendid soldier, exemplary commander and patriotic citizen, Gen. Nelson A. Miles, on his attainment of a distinguished and honorable retirement after a matchless record as a soldier of over 42 years' service without just criticism of his official conduct, which began as a lieutenant in the 22d Massachusetts Infantry, progressing by the brightest grade of heroic patriotism from Manassas to Appomattox, during the greatest of all civil wars, from 1861 to 1865, and illuminating this record by his great military achievements as a successful Indian fighter and again as a great and judicial military disciplinarian and organizer."

Commander-in-Chief Black, after the adjournment of the encampment, received the following telegram from Gen. John B. Gordon, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans: "My hearty congratulations to you and the country. Your election assures unanimous and increased good will and closest amity." Gen. Black responded as follows: "The encampment having adjourned, I have submitted your message to the council of administration, and I am directed by them to acknowledge it and say, as I do, that they fully reciprocate its fraternal and beneficent spirit. God bless our land."

Stabbed With a Hatpin. Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 22.—F. B. McArthur, a stockman of Saco, Mont., was probably fatally stabbed Friday in the stomach with a hatpin by a woman, who thought that Mr. McArthur had brushed a little feather duster in her face.

John Ellsler Dead. New York, Aug. 22.—John Ellsler, father of Effie Ellsler, the actress, and himself a veteran actor and theatrical manager, died at his home in this city early Friday, aged 82. Heart disease caused his death.

Oyster Bay, South Florida. We have received from our New York correspondent, recently printed the London Times, the text of a telegram sent by the King to President Roosevelt. Our correspondent adds that the message reached President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay, in South Florida, where he is making a short stay.

THE CUP DEFENDER.

The Reliance Outfitted and Outpointed the Shamrock.

New York, Aug. 21.—One of the biggest crowds of sightseers and yachtsmen that ever sailed down Sandy Hook to witness an attempt of a foreign cup hunter to wrest from America the yachting supremacy of the world, returned to New York Thursday disappointed because the sea had refused a field of combat to the racers, but nevertheless, jubilant in the conviction that Sir Thomas Lipton's latest challenger, like the two Shamrocks which had preceded her, was doomed to return to England empty handed. Of course the race Thursday was not absolutely conclusive owing to the light and shifting character of the air, but in a 15-mile beat to windward, a portion of which was sailed in a driving rain, the cup defender, Reliance, showed its heels to Sham rock III, in commanding style, and in weather conditions which were supposed to be to the particular liking of the challenger.

During the last two hours of the race Reliance steadily increased its lead, rounding the turn a mile ahead of Shamrock. Heading back for home close hauled, Reliance had just reached Shamrock, still outward bound, when, it being apparent that the race could not be finished in the time allowance, the regatta committee boat at 3:45 fired the signal which declared the race off. Under the rules the first race, 15 miles to leeward or windward and return, is now postponed until Saturday.

New York, Aug. 24.—In the international yacht race Saturday afternoon between the American yacht Reliance and the British boat Shamrock III, the former beat the cup challenger nine minutes.

WIFE OF A DESTITUTE STRIKER.

She Attempted to Kill Herself and Her Four Children.

Philadelphia, Aug. 24.—Two children are dead from inhaling illuminating gas. They are Clara and Bertha Roder. Their mother and two other children are in a dangerous condition. Mrs. Roder said she had attempted to murder her children and commit suicide.

She said that her husband, who is a textile striker, was without money, and that the family, who were without food, would have been forced to vacate their home Saturday.

REACHED NEW YORK.

The Battleship Massachusetts Will Go in Dry Dock.

New York, Aug. 24.—The United States battleship Massachusetts which was considerably damaged on August 12 by striking on a ledge of rocks during a fog while off the Maine coast, reached New York harbor Sunday night. She was conveyed by the battleship Indiana and the navy tug Potomac. The Massachusetts will go in dry dock at the New York navy yard, Brooklyn, for repairs.

CONVICT JOSEPH MURPHY.

One of the Men Who Escaped From Folsom Prison Captured.

Reno, Nev., Aug. 24.—Convict Joseph Murphy, who escaped from Folsom prison, was captured here Sunday night. Convict Frank Miller was with Murphy at the time, but jumped off the side walk into the willows. Several shots were fired at him but he escaped in the darkness. A large posse is on the trail of Miller and his capture is expected at any moment.

Charles Carroll Bonney Dead.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Charles Carroll Bonney, who was president of the World's Congresses of the Columbian exposition, died here Sunday of paralysis after an illness of three years.

Roundhouse and Shops Burned.

Beaumont, Tex., Aug. 24.—The roundhouse and machine shops of the Santa Fe railroad in this city burned Sunday night. Five engines and $20,000 worth of machinery were totally destroyed, the loss being estimated at $100,000.

PLEASURE BOAT SUNK.

Thirty Persons Were Thrown Into the Water.

Several Men Became Wild From the Excitement and Made Attempts to Throw Women and Children From the Vessel.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 24.—Amid scenes of panic in which terror-stricken men lost their heads and sought to throw women and children overboard, the pleasure steamer Indiana went to the bottom of the Indianapolis Water Co.'s canal at Fairview Park Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

The park officials think nobody was drowned, but J. N. Oliphant, of Indianapolis, and P. E. Betts, of Anderson, Ind., who were passengers, say that they saw a woman and baby sink to the bottom. They did not see them come to the surface again and feel sure they were drowned.

About fifty people were on board when the vessel sank, about three-quarters of a mile above its starting point in the canal, which is about eight miles long and runs from Indianapolis to Broad Ripple Park. The canal is narrow and from ten to fifteen feet deep in the middle. It is not yet certain what sent the steamer to the bottom.

Defective machinery, overloading on one side and leaks are blamed by different persons.

Skills on the canal aided in the work of rescue of fainting women and children. Mr. Bates, who says he saw the woman and baby drown, saved his wife as she sank the third time. She weighs over 200 pounds.

Thirty people were thrown into the water when the boat sank. Several of the male passengers did heroic work in getting them to shore. They were aided by the ship's crew. Much additional excitement was caused by several men on the boat who became panic-stricken and tried to throw women and children into the water. Search is being made to see if any bodies are at the bottom of the canal.

McKeesport, Pa., Aug. 24.—The Annie Roberts, an excursion boat carrying 1,500 passengers, sunk at the foot of Market street here Sunday night, but no one was drowned. The boat had been up the river with the Ancient Order of Hibernians No. 7 and their guests from Pittsburg on their annual outing.

ANOTHER ERUPTION.

Vesuvius Takes on a Fresh Period of Activity.

Naples, Aug. 24.—The prediction of Prof. Krull, of Munich, has been fulfilled as Vesuvius Saturday night had a fresh period of activity. Frequent explosions were heard and stones were thrown to a height of 600 feet above the crater, while at the same time a slight earthquake was felt. The stream of lava has again begun flowing in the direction of Pompeii, although its progress is slow. The volcanic eruption was dwindling Sunday night.

ILLEGAL FISHING.

Canadian Government Determined to Put a Stop to It.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 24.—The department of marine and fisheries is determined to put an end to illegal fishing in the great lakes. It is not the intention of the government, however, to enforce the law with seven-pounders, as has been intimated in some quarters, since the Petrel-Silver Spray incident occurred. It is the opinion in official circles that the desired end can be attained without resorting to harsh measures, which might lead to international complications.

CANADIAN EXPEDITION.

Will Make Observations of Climate, Geology and Natural Resources.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 24.—To prevent another Alaskan boundary controversy and to make observations of the climate, geology and natural resources of both land and sea of the northern regions of Canada, an expedition sent out by the Dominion government sailed from Halifax Sunday on the steamer Neptune for Hudson bay. The expedition will report on the alleged extensive poaching operations carried on in that great sea by the Americans.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

Sprouting Peas in a Child's Stomach Causes Its Death.

Creston, Ia., Aug. 24.—Sprouting peas in the stomach of a 7-year-old daughter of John Ponte, a railroad conductor, Sunday caused her death. She was taken sick ten days ago and doctors said she was suffering from dysentery. An autopsy revealed the fact that the child had swallowed peas whole, that they had sprouted and were growing in her stomach.

Zionists Congress.

Basel, Switzerland, Aug. 24.—The sixth Zionist congress opened here Sunday under the presidency of Dr. Theodore Hersh, of Vienna. Five hundred delegates from all parts of the world, including the United States and Canada attended.

Garibaldi's Son Is Dead.

Rome, Aug. 24.—Menotti Garibaldi, eldest son of the Italian patriot, is dead. He had been suffering from a liver complaint, complicated by dysentery and due to malaria. Funeral will occur Tuesday.

The Question Answered.

Estill Springs, Tenn., Aug. 24th. Many questions are being asked of Mr. C. D. Holt of this place in regard to his wonderful recovery. For two years he has been down with his back. He was so very bad that he could not even lace his shoes, and from this condition he suddenly appeared well and strong as ever.

It is no wonder therefore that his friends are asking him "How did you do it?" He tells them all: "Dodd's Kidney Pills did it," and adds "This remedy is a genuine good medicine and one that I can heartily recommend to everybody."

"Everyone around here knows how very bad I was. I was so weak in my back that I couldn't do anything that needed stooping or bending over, and three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills made me as you see, as well as ever I was."

"They certainly had a wonderful effect on my case."

Tender One Preferred.

Bannigan—The doctor told me to get a porous plaster for me stomach. Druggist—Yes, sir; what sort do you want?

"Tis little I care what sort it is, so long as 'tis easily digested."—Catholic Standard and Times.

M. K. & T. Ry. Annual Seaside Excursion.

An excursion to Galveston at this season of the year insures a delightful excursion trip at a small cost. There is nothing so good for tired bodies and weary minds as ocean breezes, and a trip of this kind at this time will prove both a health and pleasure trip. The Summer Bath.

Nothing is more refreshing or invigorating in summer than a daily bath. Use soft, tepid water and good soap. Ivory soap is ideal for the bath; it is pure, lathers quickly and leaves the skin soft and white. The bath should be taken early in the morning, or just before retiring at night. EDANOR R. PARKER.

Many women and doctors do not recognize the real symptoms of derangement of the female organs until too late.

"I had terrible pains along my spinal cord for two years and suffered dreadfully. I was given different medicines, wore plasters; none of these things helped me. Reading of the cures that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought about, I somehow felt that it was what I needed and bought a bottle to take. How glad I am that I did so; two bottles brought me immense relief and after using three bottles more I felt new life and blood surging through my veins. It seemed as though there had been a regular house cleaning through my system, that all the sickness and poison had been taken out and new life given me instead. I have advised dozens of my friends to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Good health is indispensable to complete happiness, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has secured this to me."

LORD SALISBURY DEAD.

The English Statesman Succumbed to Internal Paralysis.

In His Death Passes the Greatest Englishman of the Day—King Edward Pays a Tribute to the Dead Diplomat.

London, Aug. 24.—Lord Salisbury, last of the great statesmen of the past generation, is dead under the burden of his advanced age.

Lord Salisbury had been ill since early last winter, but his condition was not regarded as serious until in the beginning of the present month. According to the medical journals he suffered from internal paralysis, which developed from the illness following the death of his wife in 1899. Notwithstanding his illness, he had persisted in working until he was forced to take to his bed.

In the death of Lord Salisbury passes the greatest Englishman of the day. Ten years ago half the nation only would have asserted so much; to-day all Britain recognizes him as such.

The newspapers Monday morning, some of which appear with black borders, devote the bulk of their space to the last hours and career of the marquis of Salisbury. In their editorials they pay warm tributes and express deep admiration for the dead man, recognizing that with him there passes away the last of the great English statesman of the Victorian era, as well as the last of the brilliant group of European diplomats.

King Edward's tribute to the deceased marquis of Salisbury was given in the Court Circular Sunday night, dated Maitland, Sunday. It runs as follows:

"The king has received with profound regret the news of the death of the marquis of Salisbury and his majesty deeply deplores the loss of so great a statesman whose invaluable services to Queen Victoria, to the king and his country in the highest offices of state which he held for so many years will ever dwell in the memory of his fellow countrymen."

Messages of condolence are pouring in at Hatfield house. The senders include King Edward and Queen Alexandra, the queen of Portugal and President Loubet. Touching references were made to the dead statesman in the pulpits of almost all the churches in the United Kingdom. There were many visitors to the village of Hatfield Sunday.

The parish church was crowded Sunday morning, the worshippers including Premier Balfour, the earl and countess of Selborne, the marquis's sons and the members of his family and household.

Lord William Cecil, the rector of the church, officiated, but beyond choice music and appropriate hymns the service was of the usual character.

The senior curate in his sermon paid a tribute to the deceased, specially dwelling on his private virtues and his devotion to the church. In the conclusion of the discourse the whole congregation rose and remained standing while the organist played the Dead March in Saul. The funeral has been provisionally fixed for the end of this week to enable Lord Edward Cecil, who is on his way home from Egypt, to assist.

CHICAGO RESTAURANTS.

All Their Employees to Go Out on Strike Monday-Morning.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—In pursuance of the declaration made Saturday that a strike would be called in all the restaurants controlled by the Chicago Restaurant Keepers' association and a number of others the strike committee of the waiters' union will at daylight Monday morning begin to call out the thousands of restaurant employees upon whom the throngs of business men in Chicago depend for sustenance. At least 150 restaurants in the downtown and outlying districts will be visited by the labor committees and the leaders declare that before night 9,000 persons will be idle.

The officials of the Restaurant Keepers' association say that the impending strike is a direct violation of agreements that have been signed by the association and the unions and that if the strike is called the restaurants will be kept open for business with non-union help.

Two hundred women and children from these villages are now begging in the streets of Monastir.

The Turkish government has organized a special court at Monastir to try the captured insurgents. The tribunal is composed of a Turkish president, three other Turks, two Greeks and one Albanian. It will partake of the character of a criminal court and not of a court-martial.

AMUSEMENTS.

In this date and age of the world, people—that is, most people—go to the theatre to be amused after a hard day's work. While some people prefer drama, the greater part would rather laugh than cry. This has been proven by the great success of musical comedies during the past season. This attraction opens the Grand Sept. 4th. It is one of the best of this class of attractions, a farce in three acts, called "Looking for a Wife." This attraction comes to our city endorsed by both press and public. The company is a good one and includes some of the best known people on the comedy stage. The cast is a large one, containing a total of twenty-five people. Special scenery and effects are carried by the company for the entire production. The costumes are novel and beautiful and it is the claim of the management that they have the cleverest comedians and the prettiest girls of any company on the road. Some of the latest musical hits are introduced and the play is interspersed throughout with new songs and clever dances. Three solid hours of music and fun is assured to all who see "Looking for a Wife." Seats sale opens Sept. 1st.

A gown for a semi-formal occasion is always desirable. Silver-blue zireline, which is now so much used for both formal and informal occasions, is the material of which the gown is made.

Bands of beautiful Bulgarian embroidery, executed with Corticelli embroidery silk and a lavish use of handsome Luxenile lace, add very materially to the beauty and finish of our model. The back is sure to please the feminine eye, being done in the popular cascade effect.

Fiscal Court Promptly Settle the Question.

The much talked of furniture question of our new court-house, which has been tied up in the Building Committee for several weeks, was taken before the Fiscal Court, on Saturday morning, by Judge H. C. Smith and it was promptly settled by a decisive vote of 6 to 2 in favor of our home merchant, Mr. J. T. Hinton.

This should have been done in the first place, and there can be no good reason given why our home contractors should not be awarded these contracts when their bids are lower and equally as good as the foreigners. In fact, we hold that they should be given preference if a little higher.

The Court also settled the tie in regard to the clock for the tower, awarding it to Mr. A. Shire, who furnishes an elegant Seth Thomas clock for $2,023.

Both questions were settled as recommended by Chairman Thomas and Judge H. C. Smith of the Committee. The vote on the two questions were as follows: For—Thomas, Barlow, Howell, Anderson, Ingram and Hopkins. Against—Ball and DeJarnett.

This was practically all the business before the Court. The News was gratified to find that the report of Chairman Thomas and Judge H. C. Smith substantially corroborated the facts as published in regard to this matter.

Mr. Hinton will take a pride in seeing that the furniture put in the new building will be of the best that can be secured for $4,995, and stated that he was ready to give a $10,000 bond that this will be done. It is hard to down "King John" as he is often called by his friends.

Power's Trial at Georgetown.

Fourteen witnesses were introduced by the defense in the Caleb Powers trial Friday at Georgetown. At the morning session the reading of the deposition of W. S. Taylor was completed and when court adjourned for the afternoon a deposition by W. J. Davidson was being read. Davidson's statements corroborate those of Taylor in regard to occurrences in the general reception room of the Executive Department just after the assassination of Goebel. He denies various statements made by Culton and Youtsey and says he did not assist in organizing the mountain men.

Jim Howard was on the witness stand when court adjourned Saturday afternoon. Eighteen witnesses in all testified during the day and a deposition from Charles Finley, of the fugitive colony in Indiana, was read. Much of the court was taken up in attempting to prove a good character for the body of mountain men which visited Frankfort on January 25th, 1900. The defense took an attachment for Walter Day, of Breathitt county.

The defense expected to close its case yesterday at noon, and the jury was to be taken to Frankfort yesterday to view the scene of the murder.

CHILD LOVE.

When weary and worn with the struggle
In seeking life's coveted prize,
When clouds of despair hover round me
And shut out the blue of the skies;
At times when I feel so discouraged and burdened from hearing the loud
That seems to completely overwhelm me
While struggling along the rough road,
'Tis then, for relief, that I turn me away from the world and entwine
My arms 'round the one who still loves me—this golden-haired baby of mine.
What temptations can I not conquer?
What battles not win, if the prize
Is the love and the mute adoration that beams in my little one's eyes?
With her dimpled arms thrown around me, and her baby voice in my ear, There's sunshine forever about me, and all of my doubts disappear.
The beams of hope that inspire me are the love-lights that trustfully shine in the brown eyes of one who adores me
—this golden-haired baby of mine.
The blossoms of spring may all wither and the birds lose their power of song,
Yet life has a sweeter attraction than these to entice me along;
Her smile, like the sunbeams of noonday, brings gladness and warmth and good cheer,
And drives off the shadows of darkness and doubt that are hovering near—
God take away from me forever the riches of earth, but enshrine
The wealth of the love of my treasure—
this golden-haired baby of mine!

of the Sioux

CHAPTER XVII.

Events moved swiftly in the week that followed. Particulars of the accident to Gen. Field, however, were slow in reaching Fort Frayne; and, to the feverish unrest and mental trouble of the son, was now added a feverish anxiety on the father's account as to give Dr. Waller grave cause for alarm. Then it was that, ignoring every thought of behavior on the part of the young officer toward the gentle girl so dear to them, not only Mrs. Blake and Mrs. Ray, but Mrs. Dade herself insisted on being made use of—insisted on being permitted to go to his bedside and there to minister as only women can, to the suffering and distressed. Waller thought it over and succumbed. The lad was no longer delirious, at least, and if he revealed anything of what was uppermost in his mind it would be a conscious and voluntary revelation. There were some things he had said and that Waller alone had heard, the good old doctor wished were known to certain others of the garrison, and to no one more than Mrs. Dade; and so the prohibition against their visiting the wounded lad was withdrawn, and not only these, but other women, sympathetically attracted, were given the necessary authority.

There was other reason for this. From the commanding officer of the supply camp at Rock Springs had come, finally a letter that was full of foreboding. Gen. Field, it said, was sorely injured and might not survive. If the department commander had only been at Omaha or Cheyenne, as the anxious father hastened to reach his son, the mishap would never have occurred. The general would gladly have seen to it that suitable transportation from the railway to Frayne was afforded his old-time comrade. But, in his absence, Field shrank from appealing to anyone else, and, through the train conductor, wired ahead to Rock Creek for a stout, four-mule team and wagon, with a capable driver. The conductor assured him that such things were to be in readiness on his arrival. Team, wagon and driver certainly were on hand, but the team looked rickety, so did the wagon, so did the driver, who had obviously been priming for the occasion. It was this rig or nothing, however, and in spite of a courteous remonstrance from the two officers at the supply camp, who saw and condemned the "outfit," Gen. Field started on time and returned on an improvised trestle three hours later. The "outfit" had been tumbled over a ledge into a rocky bottom and with disastrous results to all concerned except the one who deserved it most—the driver. The ways of Providence are indeed inscrutable.

A surgeon had been sent from Fort Russell and his report was such that Waller would not let it go in full to his patient. They had carried the old soldier back to camp and such aid as could be given by the rude hands of untaught men was all he had for nearly 24 hours and his suffering had been great. Internal injuries, it was feared, had been sustained, and at his advanced age that was something almost fatal. No wonder Waller was worried. Then Flint took alarm at other troubles closer at hand. Up to this year he had been mercifully spared all personal conduct with our Indian wards, and when he was told by his sentries that twice in succession night riders had been heard on the westward "bench," and pony tracks in abundance had been found at the upper ford—the site of Stille's village—and that others still were to be seen in the soft ground not far from Hay's corral, the major was more than startled. At this stage of the proceedings, Sergt. Crabb, of the cavalry, was the most experienced Indian fighter left at the post. Crabb was sent for, and unflinchingly gave his views. The Sioux had probably scattered before the squadrons sent after them from the north; had fled into the hills, and, in small bands, probably, were now raiding down toward the Platte, well knowing there were few soldiers left to defend Fort Frayne, and no cavalry were there to chase them.

"What brings them here? What do they hope to get or gain?" asked Flint.

"I do not know, sir," answered Crabb. "But this I do know, they are after something and expect to get it. If I might make so bold, sir, I think the major ought to keep an eye on them blasted half-breeds at Hay's."

It set Flint to serious thinking. Pete and Crapaud, paid henchmen of the trader, had been taking advantage of their employer's absence and celebrating after the manner of their kind. One of his officers, new like himself to the neighborhood and to the Indians, had had encounter with the two that rubbed his commissarion for the wrong way. A sentry, in discharge of his duty, had warned them one evening away from the rear gate of a bachelor den, along officers' row, and had been told to go to school, or words to that effect. They had more business there than he had, said they, and, under the potent sway of "inspiring bold John Barleycorn" had not even abated their position when the officer-of-the-day happened along. They virtually damned and defied him, too.

The officer-of-the-day reported to the commanding officer, and that officer called on Mrs. Hay to tell her he should order the culprits off the reservation if they were not better behaved. Mrs. Hay, so said the servant, was feeling far from well and had to ask to be excused, when who should appear but the ministering angel Mrs. Dade herself, and Mrs. Dade undertook to tell Mrs. Hay of the misconduct of the men, even when assuring Major Flint she feared it was a matter in which Mrs. Hay was powerless. They were afraid of Hay, but not of her. Hearing of Mrs. Hay's illness, Mrs. Dade and other women had come to visit and console her, but there were very few she would now consent to see. Even though confident no bodily harm would befall her husband or her niece, Mrs. Hay was evidently sorely disturbed about something. Failing to see her, Maj. Flint sent for the bartender and clerk, and bade them say where these truculent, semi-savage bacchanals got their whisky, and both men promptly and confidently declared it wasn't at the store. Neither of them would give or sell to either halfbreed a drop, and old Wilkins stood sponsor for the integrity of the affidavits, both of whom he had known for years and both of whom intimated that the two specimens had no need to be begging, buying or stealing whisky, when Bill Hay's private cellar held more than enough to fill the whole Sioux nation. "Moreover," said Pink Marble, "they've got the run of the stables now the old man's away, and there isn't a night some of those horses ain't out." When Flint said that was something Mrs. Hay ought to know, Pink Marble replied that was something Mrs. Hay did know, unless she refused to believe the evidence of her own senses as well as his, and Pink thought it high time our fellows in the field had recaptured Hay and fished him home. If it wasn't done mighty soon he, Pink, wouldn't be answerable for what might happen at the post.

All the more anxious did this make Flint. He decided that the exigencies of the case warranted his putting a sentry upon Hay's stable, with orders to permit no horse to be taken out except by an order from him, and Crabb took him and showed him, two days later, the tracks of two horses going and coming in the soft earth in front of a narrow side door that led to the corral. Flint had this door padlocked at once and Wilkins took the key, and that night was surprised by a note from Mrs. Hay.

"The stationed complain that the sentries will not let them take the horses out for water and exercise, which has never been the case before," and Mrs. Hay begged that the restriction might be removed. Indeed, if Maj. Flint would remove the sentry, she would assume all responsibility for loss or damage. The men had been with Mr. Hay, she said, for six years and never had been interfered with before, and they were sensitive and hurt and would quit work, they said, if further molested. Then there would be nobody to take their place and the stock would suffer.

In point of fact, Mrs. Hay was pleading for the very men against whom the other employees claimed to have warned her—these two half-breeds who had defied his sentries—and Flint's anxieties materially increased. It taxed all his stock of personal piety, and strengthened the belief he was beginning to harbor, that Mrs. Hay had some use for the horses at night—some sojourners in the neighborhood with whom she must communicate, and who could they be but Sioux?

Then Mistress McGann, sound sleeper that she used to be, declared to the temporary post commander, as he was, and temporary lodger as she considered him, that things "was goin' on" about the post she'd never heard the likes of before, and that the meejor would never put up with a minute. When Mrs. McGann said "the meejor" she meant not Flint, but his predecessor. There was but one major in her world—the one she treated like a minor. Being a soldier's wife, however, she knew the deference due to the commanding officer, even though she did not choose to show it, and when bidden to say her say, and tell what things "was goin' on," Mistress McGann asserted, with the asperity of a woman who has had to put her husband to bed two nights running, that the time had never been before that he was so drunk that he didn't know his way home, and got into the back of the bachelor quarters instead of his own. "And to think of his bein' propped up at his own gate by a lousy, frog-eatin' half-Frinchman, haf salvage!" Yet, when investigated, this proved to be the case, and the further question arose, where did McGann get his whisky? A faithful, loyal, devoted old servant was McGann, yet Webb, as we have seen, had ever to watch his whisky carefully, lest the Irishman should see it, and seeing taste, and tasting fall. The store had orders from Mrs. McGann, countersigned by Webb, to the effect that her husband was never to have a drop. Flint was a teetotaler himself, and noted without a shadow of disapprobation that the decanters on the sideboard were both empty the very day he took possession, also that the cupboard was securely locked. Mrs. McGann was sure her liege got no liquor there nor at the store, and his confused statement that it was given him by "fellars at the stables," was treated with scorn. McGann then was still under martial surveillance and official displeasure the day after Mrs. McGann's revelations, with unexplained iniquities to answer for when his head had cleared and his legs resumed their functions. But by that time other matters were brought to light that laid still further accusation at his door. With the consent of Dr. Waller, Lieut. Field had been allowed to send an attendant for his desk. There were letters, he said, he greatly wished to see and answer, and Mrs. Ray had been so kind as to offer to act as his amanuensis. The attendant went with the key and came back with a scared face. Somebody, he said, had been there before him.

They did not tell Field this at the time. The doctor went at once with the messenger, and in five minutes had taken in the situation. Field's rooms had been entered and probably robbed. There was only one other occupant of the desolate set that so recently had rung to the music of so many glad young voices. Of the garrison proper at Frayne all the cavalry officers except Wilkins were away at the front; all the infantry officers, five in number, were also up along the Big Horn. The four who had come with Flint were strangers to the post, but Herron, who had been a classmate of Ross at the Point, moved into his room and took the responsibility of introducing the contract doctor, who had come with them, into the quarters at the front of the house on the second floor. These rooms had been left open and unlocked. There was nothing, said the lawful occupant, worth stealing, which was probably true; but Field had bolted, inside, the door of his sleeping room; locked the hall door of his living room and taken the key with him when he rode with Ray. The doctor looked over the rooms a moment; then sent for Wilkins, the post quartermaster, who came in a huff at being disturbed at lunch. Field had been rather peculiar about his belongings. His uniforms always hung on certain pegs in the plain wooden wardrobe. The drawers of his bureau were generally arranged like the clothes press of cadet days, as though for inspection, but now coats, blouses, dressingsack and smoking jacket hung with pockets turned inside out or flung about the bed and floor. Trousers had been treated with like contempt. The bureau looked like what sailors used to call a "hurrah's nest," and a writing desk, brass-bound and of solid make, that stood on a table by a front window, had been forcibly wrenched open and its contents were tossed about the floor. A larger desk—a wooden field desk—stood upon a trestle across the room, and this, too, had been ransacked. Just what was missing only one man could tell. Just how they entered was patent to all—through a glazed window between the bedroom and the now unused dining-room beyond. Just who were the house-breakers no man present could say; but Mistress McGann that afternoon communicated her suspicion to her sore-headed spouse, and did it boldly and with the aid of a broomstick. "It's all along," she said, "av your shtoopin' to drink wid them low-lived salvages at Hay's. Now, what d'ye know about this?"

But McGann swore piously he knew nothing, barrin' that Pete and Crapaud had some good liquor one night—dear knows when it was, an' he'd helped 'em drink her health—"an' when 'twas gone, and more was wanted, sure Pete said he'd taken a demijohn to the lieutenant's, with Mr. Hay's compliments, the day before he left for the front, and sure he couldn't have drunk all av it, and if the back dure was open Pete would inquire anyhow."

That was all Michael remembered or felt warranted in revealing, for stoutly he declared his and their innocence of having burglariously entered any premises, let alone the lieutenant's. "Sure they'd bite their own noses off fur him," said Mike, which impossible feat attested the full measure of half-breed devotion. Mistress McGann decided to make further investigation before saying anything to anybody; but before the dawn of another day, matters took such shape that fear of sorrowful consequences, involving even Michael, set a ban on her impulse to speak. Field, it seems, had been at last induced to sleep some hours that evening, and it was nearly twelve when he awoke and saw his desk on a table near the window. The attendant was nodding in an easy chair; and, just as the young officer determined to rouse him, Mrs. Dade, with the doctor, appeared on tiptoe at the doorway. For a few minutes they kept him interested in letters and reports concerning his father's condition, the gravity of which, however, was still withheld from him. Then there were reports from Tongue River, brought in by courier, that had to be told him. But after a while he would no longer be denied. He had demanded to see his desk and his letters.

At a sign from the doctor, the attendant raised it from the table and bore it to the bed. "I found things in some confusion in your quarters, Field," said Waller, by way of preparation, "and I probably haven't arranged the letters as you would if you had had time. They were lying about loosely."

But he got no further. Field had started up and was leaning on one elbow. The other arm was outstretched. "What do you mean?" he cried. "The desk hasn't been opened?"

Too evidently, however, it had been, and in an instant Field had pulled a brass pin that held in place a little drawer. It popped part way out, and with trembling hands he drew it forth—empty.

Before he could speak Mrs. Dade suddenly held up her hand in signal for silence, her face paling at the instant. There was a rush of slipped feet through the corridor, a hum of excited voices, and both Dr. Waller and the attendant darted for the door.

Outside, in the faint starlight, sound of commotion came from the direction of the guard house—of swift footfalls from far across the parade, of the vitreous jar of windows hastily raised. Two or three lights popped suddenly into view along the dark line of officers' quarters, and Waller's voice, with a ring of authority unusual to him, halted a running corporal of the guard.

"What is it?" demanded he.

"I don't know, sir," was the soldier's answer. "There was an awful scream from the end of the quarters—Capt. Ray's, sir." Then on he went again.

And then came the crack, crack of a pistol.

Circumstantial Evidence.

It is a rule, to which good lawyers usually adhere, never to tell more than one knows. A newspaper tells a funny story of a lawyer who carried the rule to the extreme.

One of the agents in a Midland revision court in England objected to a person whose name was on the register, on the ground that he was dead. The revising barrister declined to accept the assurance, however, and demanded conclusive testimony on the point.

The agent of the other side rose and gave corroborative evidence as to the decease of the gentlemen in question.

"But, sir, how do you know the man's dead?" demanded the barrister.

"Well," was the reply, "I don't know. It's very difficult to prove."

"As I suspected," returned the barrister. "You don't know whether he's dead or not."

The barrister glanced triumphantly round the court, but his expression gradually underwent a change as the witness coolly continued:

"I was saying, sir, that I don't know whether he is dead or not, but I do know this: they buried him about a month ago on suspicion."

Youth's Companion.

All in the Count.

One man thinks he has discovered the cause of the remarkable age attained by negroes. These instances are far from rare in Dixieland and the obituary of more than one colored servant relates that deceased often spoke of Lafayette, George Washington, and others. It is largely a matter of arithmetic—bad arithmetic.

One of the two servants in this family is a colored mammy. The other day she went to her employer and said:

"Mars John, what you-all goin' to gib me on mah birthday?"

"When is your birthday, Auntie?" he asked.

"Comes on Eastuh Sunday."

"How old will you be?"

"Eighty. Ah reckon ah be 'bout 80."

"Eighty!" he exclaimed. "Why, you can't be more than 60, as spry as you are."

"Deed ah's 80, sah. Ah was 16 w'en Ab'aham Linkum was shot."—Wasington Times.

HOW TO EAT SWEET CORN.

A Helpful Suggestion Which Will Meet with General Favor When Adopted.

We have decided that corn boiled on the ear tastes better as a separate course, and it is accordingly served immediately after the meat. After being carefully looked over for shreds of imbedded husk and stray silk it is thrown into rapidly boiling water and cooked for ten minutes, counting from the time that the water bubbles again; it is then drained and taken to table wrapped in the folds of a napkin of ample size. Set beside each person a finger-bowl—an essential not to be forgotten—and before each a plate holding a ball of butter, a spreader and a fork, says Good Housekeeping.

Hulls are not only useless as food, but are very irritating to the digestive organs. Why not leave them on the cob by the following quick and not ungraceful method? With the corn resting on the plate, hold it firmly by the stalk end, and, if it is hot—as it should be—you will not think a small corn cobbly superfluous. Take a fork in the right hand so that one tine only is in position to be inserted lengthwise into a row of kernels, beginning at tip end of the cob. Thrust in the fork and by a slight upward motion of the hand raise the handle, and the time will cut through the top of the kernels; continue up the row, not attempting to insert the whole length of the tine at each stage of your progress. When you have scored every row, season well—but that is superfluous! When the feast is over, you will have what you wanted and the hulls will be where they were when you began—the very best place for them.

Eating corn from the cob could not by any device yet known be made to figure as an elegant proceeding, but many care for it in no other way. An improvement, so far as appearance goes, results from breaking the cob in two before attacking further; nevertheless the indulgence "levels all, both great and small."

THE ATHLETIC GIRL.

May Be Thought "Mannish" by Some, But Reaps Reward Mentally and Physically.

The outdoor girl has always been considered womanly, simply because she is so. Both artists and poets have pictured her as a type of young womanhood. There is no reason why the active, athletic girl should be "mannish." Occasionally a silly girl in quest of distinctiveness puts on men's ways and apparel—and always to the disgust of the womanly girl and anything but admiration to the opposite sex, says American Queen.

Of course, the outdoor girl has and will ever have her enemies; but, as a rule, the criticism comes from either grudes or from other girls whose artificial make-up would not admit of any violent form of exercise. The prudish people who rise in indignation have no tenable argument to offer, and the latter objectors would gladly follow suit—if they could. So, there is really nothing in the way of opinions for the athletic girl to fear. This she knows, so she goes her hygienic ways, reaping a rich reward physically and mentally for her outdoor exercise and pleasure.

Many of the college trainers are doctors who are elated over the beneficial and ever refining influence of athletics, because it develops a girl along normal, healthful lines; and, unless carried to extremes, which is not often the case, can bring nothing but good results for the girl herself. When the lungs are filled with fresh air and the blood circulates as it should, it is indeed a beneficent means by which such results can be obtained.

From a broad, logical standpoint the athletic girl is the real girl, the type of perfect girlhood and the potential mother of a race physically and mentally sound.

BALD HEAD WAS SUGGESTIVE.

Looked Like Map of Holy Land and the Pastor's Actions Did the Rest.

Serious persons laugh rarely, but when they do it is an outburst. According to this there must have been such an outburst at one time during the life of Benjamin Harrison. This hilarity may have developed on the occasion when the future president, then a young man, was visiting at the home of friends, relates the Detroit Free Press. The boy of the family related that at Sunday school that morning they had studied a map of the holy land. "And, papa," he continued, "do you know that Mr. Wilson, who sits in front of us, his bald head looks just like the map of the holy land."

The boy was hushed. That evening the entire party went to church. While the pastor was reading announcements the boy looked intently at Mr. Wilson's barren head. Involuntarily the others did the same, no doubt recalling the allusion of the morning. A fly alighted on Mr. Wilson's geographical pate.

"The amount received in the collection this morning will enable us to send another missionary to the holy land," read the pastor. "It will depend upon your future contributions whether or not we will keep him there."

At this moment Wilson's hand swept the intruding fly from the regions suggesting the holy land. The boy went into convulsions. To preserve the dignity of the service the others soon left, for their risibilities were fast getting beyond control.

Investigation Shows That Hebrews and Catholics Outrank Members of Protestant Denominations.

In the Federation, the quarterly organ of the Federation of Churches and Christian organizations in New York city, is given the result of an investigation into race suicide by the executive secretary, Dr. Walter Laidlaw, who says:

"That religion may have directly to do with the question of race suicide has been illustrated by the sociological studies of the Federation. The material collected on both the East and West sides of Manhattan and in various wards of Brooklyn during the past seven years, and the exceptional equipment for handling it, have made it possible to prepare a careful study of the subject.

"The average number of children in the Protestant families is 1.85, in the Roman Catholic 2.63, and in the Hebrew 2.54 children. Only 10.8 per cent. of the Hebrews are without children, whereas 28.3 per cent. of the Protestants are without children. It should be noted that six times as many Hebrew families have nine children as have the Protestant families; and that for every Protestant family with eight children, there are proportionately four Hebrew, and twice as many with seven children. At the other end of the table, it appears that the proportion of Protestant families with but one or two children is larger than that of the Hebrew families with one or two children.

"Among the Protestant communions there are several whose average of children is higher than the Roman Catholic average, notably the Episcopal and Presbyterian, but, excepting the Free Methodist, there is not a single Protestant communion in which the average is as high as the Hebrew.

INJURY HEALS A CRIPPLE.

California Woman's Fall Restores the Use of Her Limbs and Speech.

Miss Alice Dane, of Pasadena, Cal., apparently a helpless cripple, and deprived of perfect speech for many years, has suddenly had the use of her limbs and vocal powers restored as the result of an accident. Miss Dane had suffered from spinal trouble and had to hobble about on crutches and could scarcely speak above a whisper.

The other day while descending the stairs at her home, she fell and the last step struck against her chest. Immediately the pains from which she had suffered for many years left, and after being taken to a couch and lying there for awhile she got up and to the surprise of every one walked without the aid of crutches. Many physicians had treated the case unsuccessfully for years.

English Lecturer Indorses Prediction of Prof. Starr Regarding Americans.

Peter C. Mitchell, lecturer on biology at the London Hospital medical college, confirms the statement of Prof. Starr, of the University of Chicago, that the Americans are reverting to the Indian type. He says it is often observable that English living among exotic races, such as Chinese and negroes, have gained a certain superficial resemblance to them, which is partly due to the climate. He does not doubt that if all races except the English were obliterated the English would slowly spread throughout the world and develop in time into different and distinct races.

Eskimo Language.

Commander Peary, the arctic explorer, was talking to a small bunch of newspaper men at Saratoga not long ago and they were asking him a number of questions about life in the extreme latitudes. Some one asked if he spoke the Eskimo language, and he said he did. "What's it like?" continued the questioner. "For instance, how would an Eskimo say 'Good morning'?" "He wouldn't say it," replied the commander, with a slight smile. "Indeed, and are they so unlettered in the amenities of life?" "Not at all, not at all," the explorer explained. "You see, in a country where they would have occasion to use those words only once a year, they don't have them."—Detroit Free Press.

Empire State Express in Foot-Ball.
The New York Central's Empire State Express is recognized as the swiftest and surest train operated by America's greatest railroad, and considered the very best means to cover the ground in the time required. It is for this reason that the Harvard University football team named their best and surest play of the season of 1902 the "Empire State Express," for they believed it to be the most reliable play in their programme. It was successful throughout the season until it met Yale's "20th Century Limited" play, which was just as swift, so a and sure, but a longer endurance and was "united" only by the size of the field. The names of the rival teams very correctly describe the difference in the famous trains, the "Empire State" running on a New York to New York to Buffalo, while the "20th Century Limited" makes the 80 miles between New York and Chicago in twenty hours every day of the year. Great is the New York Central and great are the trains it operates—swift, safe and reliable.—From the Brooklyn Standard Union.
